Celebrating 10 Years

2013-2014 Season In Review

PRISON CONCERT PROJECT

- NY PRISONS ~ 11 Concerts
December 2-12, 2013
- CA PRISONS ~ 13 Concerts
March 25 - April 3, 2014
- NH PRISONS ~ 13 Concerts
May - September 2013

The Prison Concert Project expanded to two new state prisons in New York. I also returned to nine facilities in the state that have happily grown to anticipate our call every year to return. The program directors continue to comment how much of an impact the program has on inmates.

In California, our reach in the county jail and youth systems in Los Angeles is growing with additional facilities. The rehabilitation and education work that is being done there is inspiring. Our free concerts are always welcomed in support of their work.

With generous support from the New Hampshire State Council on the Arts, we continue our annual tours of New Hampshire prisons, county jails as well as outreach to children centers. This year in particular, many inmates commented that they were happy to see me again, but this time in a new facility they were just recently transferred to. They brought inmates that might not otherwise have come.

PALESTINE CONCERT TOUR

June 9-22, 2014 ~ 19 Concerts & Workshops

I played 11 concerts for children in 3 refugee camps. Remember this means that these children's great grandparents came to Ramallah in 1948 fleeing their homes with the full expectation that they would return home in a few weeks. The camps are impoverished and the UN schools are overcrowded, but the children are beautiful and they responded to the music in a way that made it clear to me that their lives needed that repose and thoughtfulness that comes with the music of Bach. I did two concerts for the cultured elite of Ramallah, which means adults with an appreciation of the arts that you might find in New York City. It's a land of contrasts.

Then I played for a week with the Ramallah Orchestra, a very special group that comes together once a year. It is made up of adult musicians from Europe and America who pay their own way and volunteer to make up an orchestra together with young Palestinian musicians under the auspices of Al Kamandjati, my host organization who has been giving free music lessons to kids in refugee camps since 2005. It was moving in many ways: seeing older musicians (like me) giving freely of their time and expertise and seeing the young Palestinians discovering Beethoven's 5th Symphony for the first time. At the last concert, a violist from East Jerusalem joined us. As a Dru, he was required to serve in the Israeli army but as a Palestinian he refused to take up arms against his people. He had been two years in prison and got out in time to join us. The audience gave him a standing ovation. This tour was made possible by a special gift from Mary Louis Bartlett.

IRAQ CONCERT TOUR

February 2014 ~ 21 Concerts

I played 21 concerts in three cities in Kurdistan: Erbil, Ranya and Sulamany. I am always overwhelmed by the generous and hospitable spirit of the people there that provided me a place to stay like I was family. Former members of the National Youth Orchestra of Iraq, now teachers and professional players, arranged concerts for me to play for students in kindergarten through university. The most inspiring place I played was at an intensive care unit at the Children's Hospital for terminally ill, where I had to play all dressed up in full gown. Their smiles during and after the performance said it all.
